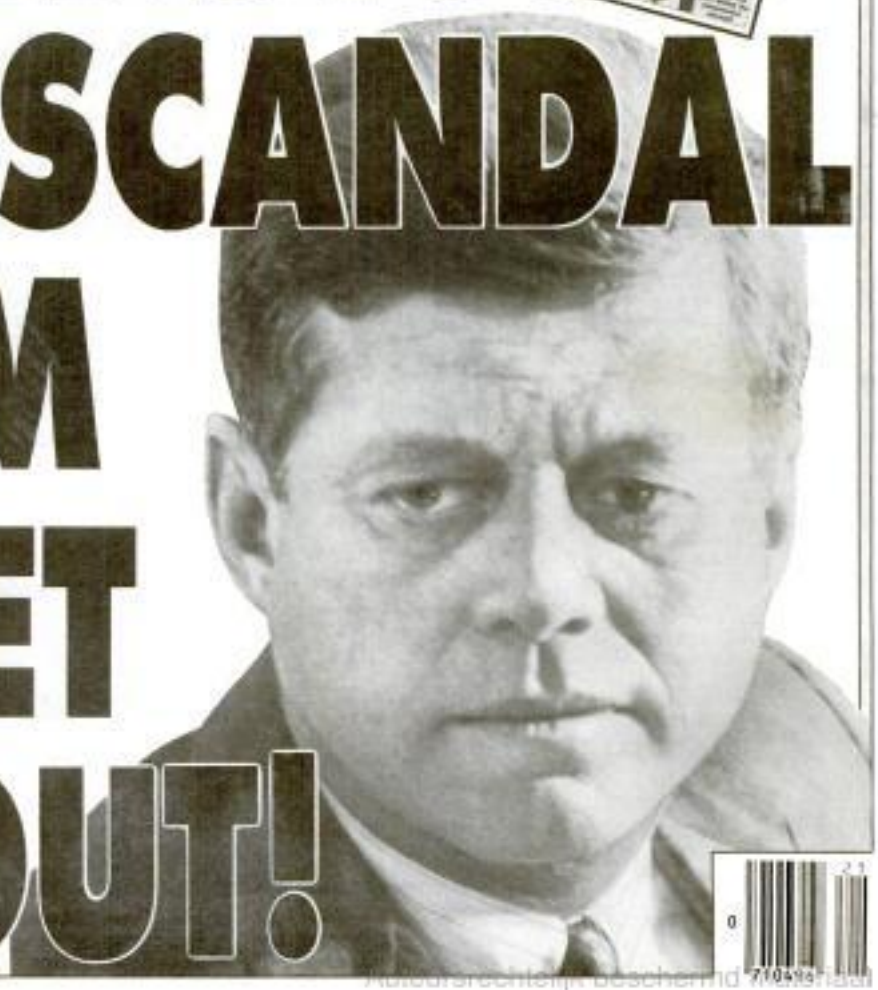
JFK BLASTS RAPE SCANDAL FROM SECRET HIDEOUT!



Who says kitties can't breathe under water?

AQUA-PUSSY Inger dazzles her mistress Anne Norline by snoozing with the goldfish.

INCREDIBLE CAT NAPS WITH FISH

By JOE BERGER

A kooky kitty named Inger has fallen so madly in love with three ugly old goldfish that she actually sleeps with her swimming sweeties — underwater!

"The vet can't believe it — nobody can believe it till they see it with their own eyes," admits Inger's mystified mistress, Anne Norline.

"They say cats can't breathe underwater, but she's so crazy about those dumb old fish she's found a way to do it. She just climbs into the bowl and snuggles down for a nap, like it's perfectly natural."

Adoring Anne realized there was something odd about Inger shortly after she found the bedraggled tabby wandering lost and alone outside her home in Stockholm, Sweden.

"She was such a loving little kitty, but weird," the flabbergasted secretary told a reporter. "She'd sit for hours, staring at my fishbowl in a trance.

"At first I thought she was figuring on hopping in there and making a meal out of poor Rolf, Lars and Olof — but after a while she started rubbing up against the bowl and purring like she was crazy in love," said Anne, 31. "I thought that was the goofiest thing I ever saw."

But unsuspecting Anne really got a shock the day she came home and found Inger curled up underwater — with the goldfish calmly nipping at her nose.

"I was so startled my heart almost jumped out of my chest," she recalled. "I was sure Inger had fallen in the fishbowl and drowned.

"Then I got a closer look and saw she was just taking a little catnap in there. And she wasn't having a bit of trouble breathing, either.

"Every once in a while one of those fish would swim by and she'd reach out and give it a little kiss." And every day since then, the dingbat cat has been leaping into the water to visit with her finny friends.

"Inger could reach out and gobble up those fish with one gulp," said Anne. "But I know now she'd never do it — 'cause she loves them too much."

Cop rewards good deed with tickets

Do-gooder Jose Moreno raced up to a cop to report a drunk driver — and got $85 worth of tickets himself.

Simpson was driving home in Veracruz, Mexico, one night when he saw a car with no lights weaving in and out of traffic. He sped after a cop but later when he blurted out his story, the cop asked for his driver's license. The officer had clocked Moreno speeding.

Moreno was fined $35 for speeding, $35 for driving without a license, and $15 for failure to produce a license.

2-year-old boy dials 911 to save his mom

By JACK ALEXANDER

A super smart 2-year-old boy knew just what to do when his mother passed out on the kitchen floor — he calmly grabbed the phone and dialed Emergency 911.

"He asked us to 'please hurry' and then he hung up saying he had to go to the bathroom," Police Lt. Ronald Dal Pra told The NEWS.

With their enhanced 911 system cops in Warren, Mich., immediately knew the address and phone number of the tot's home.

Dispatcher Jean McKay called back and the boy answered the phone.

"My name is Alex Schajter. My mom's on the floor . . . She won't get up. She doesn't feel good."

The brainy boy then gave the dispatcher his name and what street he lived on, unaware they already had that information.

Paramedics couldn't believe their eyes when they found out they were summoned to the house by a 2-year-old boy.

"I took my mom's pulse. She still has one," Alex told them. "I looked in her ear and her brain's okay."

Sarah Schajter was later treated at a hospital and released. She had suffered a concussion in an accident two weeks earlier.

"That mother is proud of that little boy. There's just the two of them but I'd say he's proved he's the man of the house," said Lt. Dal Pra.

Mrs. Schajter wasn't surprised by her son's presence of mind. "He was saying full sentences at 9 months. His favorite TV show is Rescue 911," she told police.

"What the boy did is totally amazing to me. I find it extraordinary," said Lt. Dal Pra, who has a few surprises in store for little Alex.

"We're going to fly him to city hall in a chopper and give him a citizenship award and a few other things," he said.

Cat o' nine tails makes comeback

A judge in Barbados sentenced four crooks to lashings with a cat o' nine tails — and now he can't find any cat o' nine tails on the islands.

"I will have to see where I can get one. Maybe I will have to look to England," said Justice Eliot Belgrave.

He sentenced the four men, convicted rapists and robbers, to 38 lashes and prison terms.

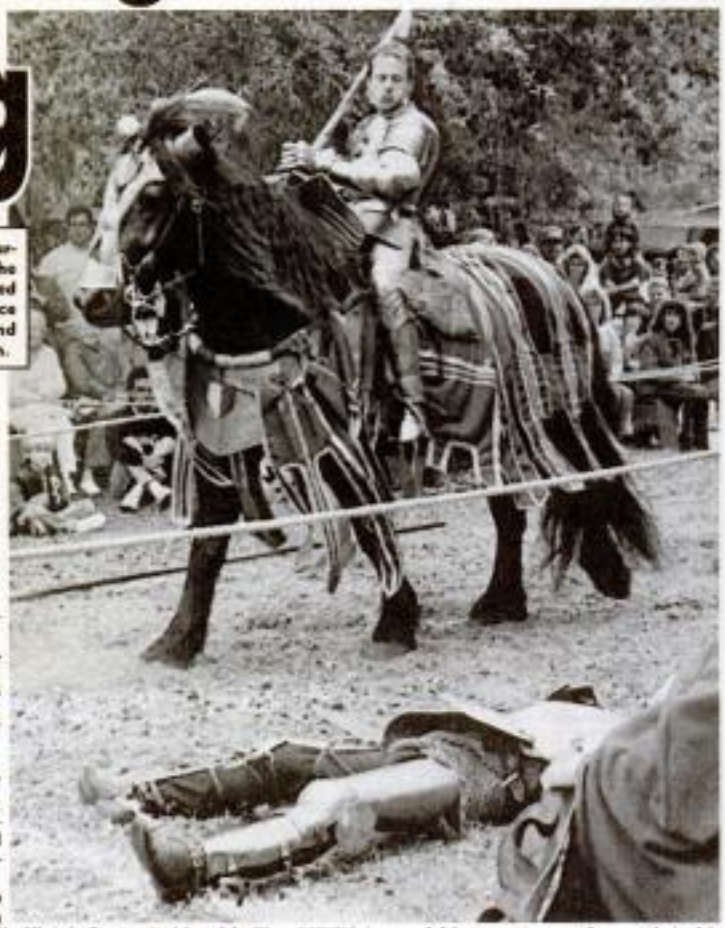
Modern-day knight stabbed in brain during jousting re-enactment



INJURED knight Lance Murray, shown lying on the ground, was nearly killed when an opponent's lance glanced off his armor and rammed through his brain.

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

The re-creation of a 16th-century jousting tournament came to a sudden and tragic climax when an armor-clad "knight" was stabbed in the brain — by his opponent's lance!

It was a freak accident that left 24-year-old Lance Murray hovering for days on the brink of death when infection caused his brain to swell, and there is a good chance he may lose his eye.

The realistic jousting contest was one of the highlights of the (Tampa) Bay Area Renaissance Festival staged in Largo, Fla.

As several hundred spectators cheered in excited expectation, the handsome young bachelor was knocked from his horse when his opponent's 15-foot-long lance struck him in the chest.

But the cheers quickly turned to gasps of horror as Murray writhed in agony on the ground. The crowd sensed immediately that something terrible had gone wrong.

"Lance was knocked off his horse by Kelly Bailey, his opponent," Festival official Scott Auld told The NEWS. "Somehow, Bailey's lance glanced off Lance's breastplate and popped open the visor on his helmet.

"The lance then pierced his face, moved his eye over and went into his brain. He's very lucky to be alive. Somebody up there was looking out for him."

Murray and Bailey are members of a touring group known as The New Riders of the Golden Age who perform in similar medieval jousting events all over the U.S.

"We've had some people get sprains, bruises and cuts," Auld said. "But this is the first major accident we've ever had.

"But Lance is doing better than we expected. We think he'll come out of this okay."

Potty-mouthed parrot rescued by cops!

Buddy the parrot is back home with his beloved mistress Claudia Myers — thanks to the fowl's foul language.

The parrot from Spokane, Wash., was kidnapped and cops identified him by his favorite saying in which he made an unprintable suggestion for what they could do to themselves.

The 35-year-old bird was heisted from an art store window and found in an apartment a few blocks away. He was delighted when police took him just started squawking and squawking," said Sgt. Earl Ennis. "You could tell he missed her."

Police arrested two men for investigation of second-degree burglary in connection with Buddy's birdnapping.

Crippled ex-President blasts kin over rape scandal

HELL-RAISIN' TED gets his ears boxed by his brother.

TEDDY IS BREAKING MY HEART, SAYS JFK

. . . from secret U.S. hideaway!

Former President John F. Kennedy has broken a 28-year vow of silence to blast Ted and Patrick Kennedy and nephew William Kennedy Smith for their involvement in the Palm Beach "rape scandal" that's called the honor of the famous family into question — again!

JFK's decision to speak out against his hell-raising relatives comes eight months after The NEWS revealed that he survived an attempt on his life in Dallas in 1963 and has been in hiding ever since.

EXCLUSIVE REPORT
By ROBIN HARTZ

In a scathing attack from a secret location here in the U.S., he railed against the drinking, drug abuse and womanizing that's kept the Kennedys in lurid headlines year after year since his alleged death.

He went on to criticize the "outrageous behavior" of virtually every family member who's veered from the straight and narrow, including Bobby Kennedy's son David — who overdosed on cocaine like a common street junkie in 1984.

"You will not drag this family's name through the mud while I have breath in my body to stop you," the former President warned Ted, Ted's son Patrick, and Smith through a handpicked group of newsmen on April 19. "You're making a mockery of me and everything that I stand for. You're killing my mother and you're breaking my heart.

"Don't make me do something I don't want to do. Don't make me risk my life by going public again."

The reporters who spoke with JFK, now 73, refuse to say where the meeting took place but they confirmed that the former President is "somewhere in the U.S."

They also said that he appeared to be in "a fragile state of health" and actually clutched his heart while discussing the alleged Easter rape at the family's Palm Beach estate.

A 29-year-old woman has said that Smith brutally assaulted her after a night of drinking with Patrick and Ted at the exclusive Palm Beach watering hole, Au Bar.

"I want to believe that this is nothing more than a big misunderstanding but Ted and the boys shouldn't have put themselves in a position to be compromised in the first place," he said with my thoughts," he added. "I want America and the world to know that I don't approve of the hell-raising and irresponsible actions that have dogged Teddy and the rest of us since Chappaquiddick."

JFK skirted questions about his own alleged womanizing and said his rumored affairs with Marilyn Monroe and mob queen Judith Exner "were grossly exaggerated."

Asked if he knew more about Chappaquiddick than police investigators and the

"Our family is at a crossroads," he continued. "You can't have drunkenness and drug overdoses, womanizing and sloth, without compromising what you stand for.

"In the 1960s, the Kennedys stood for justice and truth. Now we seem to be known for booze, drugs and rape. I won't have it.

Creep sells crosses made of chocolate

By DICK DONOVAN

It was made for kiddies and it's been branded the sickest Easter candy on earth — a chocolate Christ on the cross that "bleeds" red jam when bitten!

The blasphemous candy, named "Sweet Jesus" and so far sold only in Australia, shows Christ in agony on the cross. It's the bizarre brainchild of 36-year-old Aussie Richard Manderson.

He launched his Christ-on-the-cross candy in time to cash in on the sale of Easter baskets filled with colored eggs, jellybeans and chocolate bunnies.

A Catholic Church spokesman in Sydney slammed Manderson, charging that the candy is merely a cynical attempt to make money from religion.

"It's irreverent and offensive . . . and an appalling exercise in bad taste," Father Brian Lucas declared.

Manderson has sold thousands of the chocolate Christ candies — at $3 each — despite the howls of protest.

DEVIL'S DELIGHT: Richard Manderson holds one of his tasty crosses.

Nerdy bird watchers bamboozled — by a barnyard chicken!

FARMER Wilson Arnold: "It looked like a bald babbler."

A flock of breathless bird watchers spent four days in the bone-chilling wind and rain to catch a glimpse of an ultra-rare African bald babbler — then discovered their bald babbler was nothing but a sickly chicken!

By JOE BERGER

"What a bunch of idiots we turned out to be," groaned embarrassed bird buff Frances Roll.

"We flew 400 miles and nearly caught pneumonia looking for this babbler — and when we finally did spot it, the damn thing started clucking at us. And now, to make matters worse, we've learned there probably isn't any such bird as a bald babbler."

The tale of the bamboozled bird watchers began when wheat farmer Wilson Arnold announced he'd spotted a super-unusual "African bald babbler" out behind his barn.

"I saw a strange-looking critter wandering around out there, so I checked it out in my big bird book," wily Wilson told a reporter in Invercargill, New Zealand.

"It was real ugly, with bald spots all over its back, and it looked to me like this rare African bird nobody had spotted in 90 years or something.

"So I put out the word that I had one of 'em here at my place — and the next thing I knew, my farm was overrun with nerdy little characters saying things like, 'You should have seen the Blackburnian warbler I spotted last year in Spain.' "

Binocular-toting bird lovers pranced into Invercargill from as far away as Tokyo to take a gander at Wilson's winged wonder — and they spent days huddled in the icy rain, waiting for the unique creature to show up.

"Everybody was pretty excited, because none of us had ever seen one of these African bald babblers before," said exasperated Akiyoshi Watanabe, president of a Japanese bird-watchers' club.

"And all the time we were camped out there waiting, this farmer was making a fortune selling us hot coffee and food and umbrellas and stuff. He even brought out some portable toilets for us, then charged us every time we used them."

Then finally, the dirty birdie put in an appearance — and bewildered bird watchers discovered it was nothing but a battered barnyard biddy.

"That Wilson started yelling, 'There it is! There it is!' " recalled red-faced Australian Arnold Weese. "Suddenly our hearts beat faster and we started creeping closer.

"Then all at once we realized the thing was just a poor old chicken whose feathers had been pecked away by some other chickens. We were so disappointed we almost cried."

UFOS AND THE SPACE BROTHERS WANT YOU TO SURVIVE!

DOOMSDAY

ALL NEW EDITION 186 PAGES

Psychics, spiritual leaders, scientists and UFO contactees all agree that we are living in what has been called the END TIMES.

- The foundation of our civilization is about to crumble.
- The physical world as we know it is going to be destroyed.
- Psychic spiritual and "other-worldly" forces are about to take over!

THE TRUTH CAN NOW BE TOLD

An in depth study recently conducted by a highly qualified UFO researcher indicates drastic changes in our daily life, as well as in the shape and construction of our very planet, are imminent. This information has been channeled to at least 20 of the most highly respected contactees from more advanced beings who reside on other planets and in other dimensions. Unanimously, they agree that a global catastrophe will soon sweep over our nation as well as the rest of the world.

According to the SPACE BROTHERS whom they are in contact with time is running out. We are being told the Earth is rapidly entering the twelfth—AND FINAL!—hour for humankind. All indications are that a "time bomb of destruction" is about to go off ridding the planet of civilization as we have come to accept it. The Book of Revelations will be tomorrow's headlines as Armageddon engulfs the globe.

There are those who say a THIRD WORLD WAR is on the immediate horizon, that an ecological imbalance is now taking place, and a shifting of the North and South Poles is due, which could tip the earth out of its present orbit and send it hurtling toward the sun.

YOU CAN BE SAVED!

While utter chaos will take place all around us, all of those who have received this highly advanced, truly prophetic warning have said that the "Chosen Ones" who "are ready" will be saved and taken off this planet just in the nick of time.

Our special, fully illustrated report, a 50,000 word book titled PSYCHIC & UFO REVELATIONS IN THE LAST DAYS, is the most comprehensive volume ever put together on the subject. There is no other work like it as this book has been inspired from above. These are some of the important things you will learn—things you will NEED to know in order to make the transition from this physical dimension into a higher realm.

- Specific data on land changes. Find out which States will be geographically altered and the "safe" places to go to be out of immediate danger.
- A time table indicating when these events will begin to take place and the order in which they will occur.
- Exact "signs" and "wonders" to watch for which will indicate that only months are left.

- What material objects—"valuables"—you will need in order to survive, and where to obtain them.
- The day you will vanish from this planet—a mass evacuation by space ship will take place in which hundreds of flying saucers will come down out of the sky and "lift off" the worthy. What are your chances of being saved, and what can you do to make certain you are among "the chosen."

Some of those who have contributed to this valuable reference include New Agers Brad and Francie Steiger; Space Channel Rober Short; the spiritual group Mark Age; UFO communicator Jane Allyson; Parasychologist Warren Freiberg; and the space being known as Ashtar.

If you have even a slight interest in UFOs you will want to order this book. This is not just another title filled with wild stories, but this volume actually presents useful data which could change your life and help you to survive DOOMSDAY!

PSYCHIC & UFO REVELATIONS IN THE LAST DAYS is available by ordering now. Send for a copy right away and we will include a subscription to our sensational UFO REVIEW Magazine, as well as a special meditation you can use in order to establish contact for yourself with these highly advanced alien beings—the space brothers—who are watching over Earth.

SPREAD THE WORD—JOIN THE LEGIONS OF LIGHT

Ashtar and the "Space Brothers" have repeatedly said that it is time we New Agers show our belief in the existence of more advanced life in space. As a special moment to coincide with the release of this important volume we are offering for a limited time only a beautiful medallion depicting the symbol of the New World Order—a rainbow with a flying saucer flying over it (see above illustration). This medallion can be worn, carried in your pocket or used as a key chain. Other "believers" will be able to spot you at a distance and the Space Brothers may even be able to pick up telepathically the fact that you have this in your possession. This medallion is not available anywhere else and is offered only to those who order a copy of this exciting new book that is crammed full of predictions for the LAST DAYS and thrilling tales about a wonderful future to come.

Heartless woman's going to the slammer!

GUILTY! Stacy Lynn Harmon faces up to 15 years in prison.

BABY DIES BECAUSE MOM UNPLUGS 'NOISY' HEART MACHINE

BABY Kayla, born premature and underweight, depended upon a lifesaving monitor to track her heart rate.

Sound of the monitor was driving her nuts!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Stacy Lynn Harmon turned off her baby's lifesaving heart monitor because she was irked by the noise it made — and her defenseless infant died!

The 23-year-old woman has been convicted of negligent homicide and cruelty to a juvenile following her daughter Kayla's crib death. She faces up to 15 years in prison.

"Doctors say the infant would have survived if she was kept on the monitor," said Pam Hershey, who prosecuted the case for the District Attorney's office in Covington, La. "The monitor was intended to alert someone if the baby stopped breathing. Then all you had to do was touch the child and she would start breathing again.

"In her trial the mother said she used it until the baby's last night when she slept with the infant. But we say no. When we recovered the monitor from her house it was covered with dust. We believe she took it off the baby two or three days before her death because it made too much noise."

According to court records, Kayla was born April 19, 1990. She was premature and slightly underweight, but in good health. Because another of Stacy Harmon's four children had died of crib death, doctors sent the baby home on a special monitor that tracked her breathing and heart rate. But prosecutors contend that the child was allowed to develop a horrendous diaper rash and was unhooked from the monitor.

When Stacy called police May 14 after she awakened to find her daughter cold and lifeless, she was arrested.

A jury deliberated just a few hours before unanimously declaring her guilty.

This totally different horoscope has already turned around many lives around the world with spectacular results.

For the surprising reason revealed to you below, details about this "Supersuccess" Horoscope are offered to you completely free (but for a strictly limited time) by the woman who is acclaimed the "World's Most Accurate Astrologer" by the Guinness Book of Records: Jacqueline Stallone. Here — the irresistible free details offer she made to our readers (to you) during a recent interview.

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW with Jacqueline Stallone

By AMY BLAKE

Question: Can the "Supersuccess" Horoscope solve the money problems of ordinary people who have never been successful — or with urgent financial problems?

Jacqueline Stallone: It is especially these people with money problems whom I would like to help. The fact that some people have to work hard to live but have little money has always made me mad.

Question: Is it true that a "Supersuccess" Horoscope makes it possible to find out if a person will succeed or not? And if they'll be rich or not?

Jacqueline Stallone: As I'm sure you already know, life offers us a choice of many directions to take. One choice can take you to success, money and love. Another direction can take you toward stalemate and failure. The main purpose of the "Supersuccess" Horoscope is to indicate the direction that will take you to success...and money! And if something in your future is negative, your "Supersuccess" Horoscope, prepared especially for you from your date of birth, tells you what to do to make it positive.

Question: Is it true that it was a "Supersuccess" Horoscope which guided the life of your son, Sylvester Stallone, to top-ranked success and money?

Jacqueline Stallone: Yes, it's true. Although I must say that he is also particularly gifted.

For specific details, see page 115 of Jacqueline Stallone's book, "Star Power."

Question: Do you know other people who have succeeded because of this kind of horoscope?

Jacqueline Stallone: Countless numbers. Obviously, professional secrecy does not permit me to reveal their names. Nevertheless, everyone knows that even one of our former presidents ran the White House by a horoscope based on what the stars indicated should be done.

Question: Does a "Supersuccess" Horoscope clearly indicate what to do — and what not to do?

Jacqueline Stallone: A "Supersuccess" Horoscope is like a road sign. It tells you the best route to take to achieve success and money. It also indicates what things or people you have to avoid, and what opportunities and chances you should take. And just as important, it tells you clearly which are the periods during which you should not undertake anything at all. As you'll see, a "Supersuccess" Horoscope contains things that you never would have dreamed could exist in a horoscope.

Question: Can a normal horoscope give the same predictions?

Jacqueline Stallone: A normal horoscope is a general horoscope. It tells you what's going to happen, but it doesn't tell you the best route to take. So you hesitate. Should I do this? Should I do that? A "Supersuccess" Horoscope tells you. The result? You succeed. Words can't express the benefits you get from it. Life will have new meaning for you. You'll do what you want to do instead of having to do things you hate doing.

Question: If a big change is about to happen — like a period of luck, or love — does the "Supersuccess" Horoscope predict it?

Jacqueline Stallone: Yes, of course. The "Supersuccess" Horoscope concentrates on guiding you toward success. Not just success with money, but also success in general. So obviously, I also indicate what you have to do to succeed in your love life. And how to get the most out of your lucky periods.

And don't forget, I'm "the world's most accurate astrologer." That's not my judgment — that's what the Guinness Book of Records says.

But I'm going to prove to you that it's true. And I will prove it by giving you your lucky numbers...

Question: Can you tell us why you are giving away details of "Supersuccess" Horoscope free of charge, since you usually ask for money? Your services are in great demand. So everyone knows you certainly don't lack clients.

Jacqueline Stallone: Up till now, a horoscope like this was reserved for the important people in this world who didn't mind paying a small fortune. Maybe that's the reason they're successful. They know what has to be done, and what has to be avoided. And when.

As I've already told you, I would like not only to help people who have serious money problems, but I also want to show the general public that a "Supersuccess" Horoscope is an investment that produces much, much more than it costs. At any price. That's why I have agreed for a limited time to prepare details about "Supersuccess" Horoscope absolutely free of charge. Nothing to pay before hand.

The astonishing confession of Sylvester Stallone

Me, my younger brother, Frank (just nominated for three Grammy Awards), my sister, Toni-ann (successful author of children's mystery stories) — our lives and careers have been guided by a "Supersuccess" Horoscope prepared by our mother, Jacqueline Stallone.

Thanks to her amazing horoscope, I have always known which route to choose. What I had to do. And when.

The only time I didn't follow the exquisite instructions of the stars was when I fell in love with Brigitte.

This bum uses his head

. . . now he's the richest beggar in the world!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Adi Pandit does nothing but lie from morning to night on a busy sidewalk in Bombay, India, with his head buried in dirt — but it's made him the richest beggar in the world!

For some unexplainable reason, none of the hundreds of wealthy tourists strolling the city's crowded streets can pass him by without giving a cash handout that would stagger any of his fellow beggars.

One elderly British dowager was so moved at the sight of 32-year-old Adi's public display of what she mistook to be "his humility," she gave him a diamond-studded pin which he promptly sold for $22,000 cash!

"Tourists who see him lying there with his head buried in the dirt are flooded with great pity for him," explained a Bombay merchant.

"But his head is actually covered mostly with stones and he is in no danger of suffocating. Yet they shower him with so much money that he is today a very, very rich man.

"A man at his bank told me last year that Adi's fortune amounts to more than $22 million.

"It doesn't surprise me. I see people rain money on him every day.

"Tourists are so gullible. If try mansion, or watch when his chauffeur brings him to the city in his Rolls-Royce each morning, they would turn green with envy . . . as I am."

But Adi couldn't care less what others think. He knows he's found the Midas Touch, and living the life of a beggar by day and a high-living aristocrat by night is just fine with him.

"We all have to earn money so we can eat," he explained. "And I just happen to eat better than most. Is that a

Wet towel fight puts girl in coma

A friendly towel-snapping fight after gym class ended with a teenage girl in the hospital — in a life-threatening coma.

By SCOTTY PAUL

Evie Cardwell, 15, was rushed to a hospital in Cardiff, Wales, after the horseplay horror.

"The towel hit her square in the head and she dropped to the floor immediately," said her tearful friend, Frances Aldridge.

The two girls and four other classmates rolled up their wet towels after showering and playfully snapped of the snapping. Everyone was laughing and having a good time until Evie bent over and got snapped in the head," Frances said.

Other shocked classmates told police that Evie is always "clowning around," so when she slumped to the floor, they thought she was joking.

Police have questioned witnesses and are convinced Evie's injury was an accident. They have refused to identify the girl who snapped Evie with the towel.

"Identifying her would serve no purpose," said Police Inspector Richard Mansfield. "She is heartbroken about what happened."

Why Michael Landon isn't afraid to die:

MY DAD SPOKE TO ME FROM BEYOND THE GRAVE!

BRAVE Michael Landon is upbeat.

Cancer-stricken TV hero Michael Landon has just months to live, say doctors, but the Highway to Heaven man has no fear — he's always believed in life after death.

And Landon got absolute proof of it when his beloved dad spoke to him at his funeral. "Ever since I can remember, I've believed in life after death," the superstar says.

"But when I heard my father's voice speaking to me at his funeral in 1959, it proved that belief in a very strong way.

"I had knelt before my father's coffin, sobbing. Suddenly I felt a soft touch brush against my shoulder. Then I heard my father's voice. He said to me, 'Don't worry, kid. It's okay. I'm fine. Everything's going to be all right.'

"I didn't mention it to anyone, but from that moment onward I knew my father was close to me. Even though his body was now quiet, I knew that a spiritual part of him lived on very close to me. I knew he could communicate with me, and it comforted me," said Landon.

Now that Landon is faced with his own death due to inoperable cancer of the pancreas and liver, belief in the hereafter hasn't doused his fighting spirit.

"I think we all create our own miracles," he says.

Mickey Rooney wants to set the record straight after all these years.

TERRIFYING character of Dr. Hannibal Lecter in The Silence of the Lambs has meant brisk business for shrinks.

Goofy guru wants to reform Manson — with meditation!

Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, onetime guru to the Beatles, wants to rehabilitate helter-skelter murderer Charlie Manson along with the other 800,000 convicts in America!

"Within two or three days, his face will change," predicts the chirpy Maharishi, who's been peddling transcendental meditation since the '50s.

"Oh, sure," says Vincent Bugliosi, the man who prosecuted Manson.

"I think he's beyond redemption. I wouldn't want to see him out, with or without meditation." Bugliosi isn't alone in his skepticism. "It's a nice thought, but not the ultimate solution," says John Blamphin, spokesman for the American Psychiatric Association.

ODDBALL Yogi, left, wants poor little Charlie Manson to be happy.

The big catch is the cost. TM costs $1,500 per prisoner and most prisons don't have enough dough for food and clothing. Small thinking, says the relentlessly optimistic Yogi.

The REAL secrets to getting a loan!

Much of what people believe about loans is just myth — and what you don't know about borrowing can hurt your chances of getting a loan.

Here two banking experts separate the myths about getting a loan from the facts:

MYTH: You must be at the same job for a long period of time to qualify for a loan.

FACT: "Job hoppers do make some lenders nervous.

"But, a lender will look favorably on a career advancement, even if you've changed jobs within the past six months," said Jim Kendall, a financial expert.

MYTH: Your salary is the main factor determining if you get a loan.

FACT: "A lending officer looks for the three C's — capacity to repay, character and credit worthiness," revealed Jack Shipman, a bank expert of Louisville, Ky.

"Your ability to repay a loan involves not just your salary, but also your spouse's salary, your credit history and the money you owe."

MYTH: Your best chance of getting a loan is from the institution where you have a savings account.

FACT: "Only if you're borrowing against that account," said Kendall.

MYTH: Both the very old and very young really have no chance of getting a loan.

FACT: "They have as much chance as anyone else," said Shipman. "A loan application cannot be rejected on the grounds of age."

MYTH: If one lender turns you down, every other lender will also do the same.

FACT: "If one institution turns you down, it doesn't mean you're plumb out of luck," said Kendall.

"A lender may refuse your loan application if there's something incorrect in your credit record.

"You have every right to know why your loan was refused — and you should ask." You can then act to correct any errors in your credit file.

MYTH: If you default on a loan, the lender will immediately garnish your wages or property.

FACT: "The last thing lenders want is to foreclose on a loan," said Shipman.

"Lenders are more likely to let you skip payments than to take drastic action."

Suicide shocker

When her best friends told her to "get lost," heartbroken teen Caroline Price plunged 80 feet off a cliff to her death.

Her two girlfriends told Caroline, 15, they didn't want to hang around with her anymore. "It was a question of two's company, three's a crowd," said a classmate of Caroline at a school near Cardiff, Wales.

Granny wins $130G from big shots who stole her doll idea

BACK WITH MAMA! Granny Violet Gessler hugs her beloved invention — a rag doll vacuum cleaner cover.

By DICK DONOVAN

A feisty seamstress is $130,000 richer because she refused to let big shots waltz off with her friend Vanessa — the doll she made to cover her vacuum cleaner!

But Plymouth, Mich., granny Violet Gessler had to go to court to prove she is the "mother" of Vanessa, the brainchild she conceived while cleaning her house for company in 1982.

Feisty woman cleans up with invention

"I was rushing to put my vacuum cleaner away," Violet explained, "and I suddenly thought . . . 'If I could cover the vacuum with something attractive, I wouldn't have to keep hiding it.'"

Her brainchild was Vanessa, a hollow, 4-foot-tall rag doll with long dress and apron that fits over a vacuum cleaner handle.

"Vanessa just came to me right away," she said.

"After my company left, I sat down and made her. Later, I made 22 of them and took them to the fair. I sold out in an hour . . . at $25 each. I knew I had something great . . . but not that great."

In 1985, the world-famous Hoover Company signed an agreement to market a version of the doll named Hanna Hoover.

Then Violet signed an agreement with Overseas Marketing Network Inc., to handle foreign sales.

"But 10 days after that agreement was signed, my doll was taken off the market and Overseas put their own doll out. And I went to court," said the feisty oldster.

It took a couple of years, but a federal court jury finally decided that Violet was entitled to receive 10 percent of the $1.3 million Overseas made on the sale of its dolls.

"The Hoover executives treated me just fine and I'd like to get back with them," Violet told The NEWS.

"But for now, if anyone wants a Vanessa doll they have to come to her mother . . . and that's me."

Beauties have it made!

A good-looking chick will climb higher on the career ladder and make more money than a homely woman, even if the gorgeous doll is an airhead bimbo!

"For the working woman, beauty definitely succeeds," says University of Pittsburgh psychologist Irene Firenze.

Thousands pray for miracles

DEAD CHILD THE SICK!

THE FAITHFUL who flock to the grave of Charlene Richard leave money and roses on the headstone beside a small plaque bearing her picture.

Believers say God works through little Cajun girl who died 32 years ago!

Thousands of deathly sick and crippled people converge on tiny Richard, La., each year to pray for a miracle from a little girl — who died 32 years ago.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Since the 1960s, believers who have prayed on the grave of Charlene Richard claim she has helped put cancers into remission, healed cripples and given unexpected riches to the needy.

"There are many of us, who have witnessed the power of God through Charlene, who feel the Vatican should designate her a saint," said Mrs. Aleta McConnell.

Charlene was an ordinary Cajun girl of 12 when she died of leukemia in 1959, after 13 days of agony in a Lafayette hospital.

"People have told me there was nothing great about Charlene," said a Catholic priest, the Rev. Joseph Brennan. "I think Charlene was an ordinary little girl until crisis came into her life."

Miriam Price is sure that Charlene interceded with God in behalf of her granddaughter, Nicole, who defied the odds and won a three-year battle with neuroblastoma, a deadly

Her family thought Nicole had an imaginary friend until Mrs. Price got a call months later from a woman who said she had been praying to Charlene to intercede with God and cure her granddaughter's leukemia. She suggested Mrs. Price do the same.

Nicole's family contacted a priest who drove them to Charlene's tomb. The priest held Nicole so that she could see Charlene's picture on her grave.

Soon after that graveside experience, Nicole's cancer mi-

who had the same disease as Nicole, didn't survive.

"We called it luck then, but now we're not so sure," Mrs. Price said.

Six months later, a new tumor appeared on Nicole's spleen and her anxious family sweated out a weekend waiting to find out if it was malignant.

Their priest drove back to her to intervene with God in behalf of Nicole. The tumor turned out to be benign.

"I believe God performs miracles, and I know Charlene is closer to God than I am," said Mrs. Price. "Maybe she's watching over Nicole, and there's not a day I haven't prayed to her and thanked her."

She claims her granddaughter's leukemia went into remission after prayers to Charlene.

The Rev. Floyd Calais, a Catholic priest in Lafayette, claims Charlene has interceded with God to help him raise money for the poor during his career.

"Whenever my heart was heavy with problems, I would for she has a way with God," said Father Calais. "God would help solve my burden, but Charlene was the go-between."

Father Calais began telling others about his experiences with Charlene in the 1960s. He believes that's why an average of 30 people a day have asked her to intervene for them.

Guys are bigger blabbermouths than gals

Men are bigger blabbermouths than women are, says a university expert.

"While men complain about women talking too much, it's actually men who are the loudmouths," declared Dr. Judy C. Pearson, who studied hundreds of conversations between men and women.

During a typical conversation, men talk about 55 percent of the time and women talk 45 percent of the time, she said.

"The fact that men talk more than women is directly linked to men's more dominant status in society," said Dr. Pearson, who is an expert of interpersonal communications.

"It seems that both men and women have the perception that men have the right to talk more."

That's because in a traditional marriage, the husband conducts most of the family's important business.

The man becomes the family spokesman and has more dealings with outside workmen, mechanics and such, than the woman does.

Even though they talk more, men get to the point more quickly, while women take a lot longer to say what they mean.

In a one-minute segment of conversation, for example, a woman will use more qualifiers, such as adjectives and adverbs, while she talks.

But a man will make more concrete points, discovered Dr. Pearson, who is the author of the book Gender and Communication.

"Men are more prone to say, 'Let's get to the point' or ask 'What's the bottom line?' in their conversations," she said. "But when women talk, they don't get to the main point and it seems like a lot of time is consumed."

Deadly scorpions rain from sky!

Terrified residents of a desert town are cowering indoors after deadly scorpions began raining from the sky by the thousands.

The stinging creatures invaded Asyut, Egypt, and attacked at least 120 people. At least 12 are expected to die. Experts blame the scorpion storm on cold and rainy weather in the Sahara Desert, followed by strong winds that blew the creatures into town.

Thelma Jean's hopping mad at America's biggest cheapskate!

Ed Anger takes wife 'round the world' — at Disneyland!

ED SAYS you can see all the world you want to without leaving the good old U.S.A. — at Disney World.

MY AMERICA
By ED ANGER

I'm madder than Walt Disney in an X-rated movie at my nitwit wife Thelma Jean, who pouted like a spoiled brat during our entire vacation last week.

And all because I treated her to four fun-packed days at Disney World's Epcot Center down in Florida instead of one of those pricey Caribbean cruises or a trip to Spain!

What Thelma Jean can't get through that airhead of hers is that you can visit all those foreign countries at Epcot Center and never set foot outside the good old U.S. of A.! Why put up with a bunch of greasy foreigners in some filthy country where they jabber in pidgin English all day and know a jillion ways to fleece American tourists?

Even the Chinese exhibit at Epcot is clean as a whistle and NOBODY runs around like a chicken with its head cut off saying "So solly" all the time. In fact, you only have to put up with a couple of Chinese people because that's all they have working there.

Ditto for the Spain and England sideshows. And not only that, you don't have to visit any undesirable countries like France if you don't want to. Spend a couple of days in Paris and you'll know why the Germans REALLY got the hell out of there at the end of World War 2. The only time it didn't smell terrible was when there were no Frenchmen around.

At Epcot you can take a trip around the world and never see a foreigner. And let's face it, most people in foreign countries are ugly. I don't know why, but it's a proven fact.

Take England, for instance. An English beauty queen is about as rare as a Russian one, for crying out loud.

And English men aren't much better.

Those limeys all look like Winston Churchill for my money, and smell like that cigar of his.

And speaking of money, I saved a bundle to boot by taking Thelma Jean to Epcot instead of a real foreign country.

So the ol' lady can pitch all the hissy fits she wants, a trip around the world at Disneyland is the only way to fly.

COUNTESS

An ingredient found in white bread will eradicate cancer of all kinds, brain banks will open to accommodate people seeking transplants, and the development of portable electronic sex organs will let men and women switch roles while making love.

Those are just a few of the mind-boggling medical predictions that Countess Sophia Sabak — whose incredible psychic powers led her to foresee brain scanners and artificial hearts years before they were developed — sees coming to pass in the 1990s.

Here's more:

● Blood experts will develop synthetic powdered plasma, making blood donations a thing of the past. Doctors will simply add water for an instant transfusion.

● Skin cream made from Caribbean mangoes and papayas will be able to completely erase scars, even those from burns.

● Do-it-yourself X rays will be possible with a new film for your camera. You'll be able to check your own lungs for cancer and see if that fall down the stairs left you with any broken bones.

● An Austrian physician makes a breakthrough in medical analysis and the training of physicians, letting doctors diagnose diseases simply by looking at a family snapshot.

● A new pill, developed by NASA scientists to make space travel more comfortable, will be made available to the public. It will let you go for three months without having to make a trip to the bathroom.

● A national lottery will be created to distribute body parts from organ donors to those who need them. There will be no charge for patients who can demonstrate that they actually need the transplants.

● Hypnotism will be used to reverse aging. After only three weeks of treatment, most people will look and feel 10 years younger.

● Female hormone injections will help balding men grow hair.

● Simple surgery will give people gills so they can breathe like fish in the sea. The ocean depths will prove to be a popular place to live, helping to save the human race from pollution and overpopulation.

● New diet chewing gum releases enzymes that will let you eat what you want and not gain an ounce.

● You'll be able to change your skin color — temporarily — with a new compound that you take internally. The effect lasts only 12 hours

COUNTESS Sabak foresaw the development of the artificial heart.

THE world's top psychic, Countess Sophia Sabak, looks into her crystal ball for the decade's most amazing breakthroughs in medical science.

and lets you coordinate the color of the clothes you're wearing with your appearance.

● Spray-on bandages will replace stick-on ones. They'll keep cuts clean of infection and be easy as pie to apply and remove.

● A milk shake made from the bone marrow of Sumatran monkeys will cure arthritis.

● Laser dentistry will be commonplace in the 1990s. The technique will be used for cleaning as well as cavity repair — and will be completely pain free.

● An artificial spinal cord will let surgeons cure paralysis. Wheelchair-bound patients will be up and walking around in no time, thanks to this high-tech plastic device which uses fiber optics to carry nerve signals.

● Our obsessive fascination with exercise will fade when researchers conclude that all the jiggling and jostling associated with aerobics and weightlifting can lead to heart disease and impotence.

● An incredible synthetic growth hormone will allow anyone — male or female — to grow 8 feet tall without any risk to their health. Basketball officials, worried that their sport will lose a lot of its drama, decide to raise the rims two feet.

● Removable, computer-designed-and-activated artificial eyes will give sight to the blind.

● Millions of Americans will switch to all-meat diets after researchers conclusively prove that green vegetables — not steaks, ribs and chops — are the major cause of heart disease.

● Nose jobs will no longer require expensive surgery after researchers discover a chemical that makes it possible to soften a patient's schnozz and reshape it without pain.

● Alzheimer's disease will be cured — by a drug made from the ground-up wing membranes of vampire bats.

● An extract of bananas, used as an ointment in the ears, will make teenage acne a thing of the past.

● An inexpensive, battery-powered sleeping aid attached to a headband will not only cure insomnia — it will also keep the wearer from snoring.

● Skin specialists will discover that showering is harmful to your health because it washes off natural disease fighters found in human sweat.

● The common cold will be licked by an uncommon remedy — medicine made from the ground-up antennae of cockroaches.

● And finally, by late in the decade, a national health plan will provide for free medical treatment for all Americans — bringing us on a par with many other countries in the civilized world and making all these incredible breakthroughs in medical science available to all.

A FEW years ago, the Countess predicted development of "a sausage-shaped machine into which patients would be inserted for neurological study." Now brain scanners are com-

How to help your pet beat the heat

The summer swelter is here, but you can help your pet beat the heat by following tips from experts.

Dogs and cats are very sensitive to stifling hot weather and so they need special care.

Here's how to protect your pooch from overheating.

● On hot days, walk your dog only early in the morning or in the cool of the evening.

● Leave out twice as many water bowls, or use a larger bowl.

● If your dog is locked in the house all day, make sure some windows are open or leave the air conditioner on.

● When your pooch is outside, leave out a child's wading pool filled with cold tap water. Some dogs love to wade occasionally.

● Don't have your dog jog with you in hot weather; wait for cool evenings.

● Playing "fetch" with sticks or balls in hot weather is dangerous. Your dog might keep on playing to please you, but could overheat at the same time.

● Pay extra attention to keeping your dog's coat well-groomed. That will prevent matting, which makes the hair act as a blanket, trapping heat.

● Cool your dog down with a hose as long as he's not frightened by it.

● Feed your dog light, moist meals in hot weather.

● Make sure your dog has shade available at all times.

Cats are better able than dogs to protect themselves in hot weather. By licking their own coats, they wet down their skin and allow the evaporation to cool them off.

But cats do need shade and constant supplies of fresh water in hot weather, along with ventilation, just as dogs do. And cat and dog owners should also be on the lookout for fleas.

In addition, like dogs, cats should be fed light, moist meals in hot weather. And if your pet appears to be suffering from heat exhaustion, dampen it with cold tap water and take it to a veterinarian.

Other pets, such as mice, birds, guinea pigs and gerbils, are not at risk in hot weather as long as they have fresh water, are out of direct sunlight and in a cage with lots of fresh air circulation.

Guy raped at gunpoint — by three gals

Canadian cops are looking for three dazzling young gals who lured a 27-year-old man into their car and raped him at gunpoint.

The unsuspecting fellow was walking home in the snow when the women — smartly dressed and in their 20s — offered him a ride.

When he got into their car, the lusty ladies drove him to a secluded spot outside Guelph, Ontario, where they took off his clothes and attacked him, lawmen said.

She's an alley cat all week but a church mouse on Sunday!

Confidential

Dear Heartsick Mom in Weston: I don't care if the kid is 15 or 53 — if he used heroin in my house I'd kick his butt out!

Dear Professor in College Park: If you're so smart, butthead, why aren't you rich?

Dear Anxious Senior in Kent: Once a month is plenty for a geezer like you!

Dear Worried Schoolkid in Gibson: You should have thought about that before you skipped the last 63 days of school!

Dear Furious Reader in Fall River: Karate doesn't scare me. I carry a gun!

Dear Busting Out in Bell City: If that's the case, buy a bigger bra!

Dear Angry Socialist in N.Y.C.: Drop dead!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell it like it is. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462.

Dear Dotti: Maybe you can explain something to me. My wife of six years runs around with other men and boozes it up all hours of the day and night. She all but abandoned our three children and me. And yet she's up bright and early every Sunday morning, ready to go to church.

What gives, Dotti? Why does my wife act like a heathen six days a week and become an angel the seventh? — Wondering in Renville

Dear Wondering: The answer to your question is in the dictionary — see "hypocrite"!

My filthy-rich parents really treat me like dirt

Dear Dotti: My parents are filthy rich but when it comes to spending money on me you'd think they were living in the poorhouse. I wanted a BMW for my 16th birthday, for example, but all I got was a crummy little econobox. Even worse, Daddy took away my gold card for a week just because I flew a few friends to New York for dinner and dancing while he and Mom were out of town.

Why are my parents so chintzy, Dotti? — Priscilla in D.C.

Dear Priscilla: You listen to me, you little pinhead, and you listen to me good. A lot of kids would give anything for "a crummy little econobox" and some people actually save for YEARS to finance a trip to New York. As far as I'm concerned your parents shouldn't give you anything — but the business end of a paddle!

I'm a lonely psycho killer who wants some pen pals

Dear Dotti: I'm in prison for rape and murder and desperately need some pen pals to ease the loneliness of life behind bars. I know that millions of people read your column every week and was wondering if you'd print my address so that people can write. I prefer female pen pals. Thanks. — Lonely in California

Dear Lonely: I wouldn't help a scumbag like you if my life depended on it. To answer your question — go die!

Why must beautiful gals wear ugly underwear?

Dear Dotti: Why do pretty girls wear ugly-looking underwear? It's bad enough seeing bikini lingerie, teddies and black panties in the movies. It makes me want to throw up! — F.L. in Brockton

Dear F.L.: Women wear teddies, black panties and bikinis because they like them — and aren't the least bit interested in impressing a dead-from-the-waist-down butthead like you!

It's time to put those pansies in their place

Dear Dotti: Whatever happened to your tough, no-nonsense gay-bashing attitude? I thought you were the one person in the newspaper world we could count on to put homosexuals in their place! — Curious in Missouri

Dear Curious: A gay-basher is a person who attacks homosexuals for no good reason whatsoever, and I've NEVER done that in my column. When an idiotic gay writes I put him in his place just as I do when an idiotic heterosexual writes!

offers readers personal advice based on your horoscope. Write to Countess Sabak, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla., 33462. Include your birth date. The Countess' advice is free. Do not send money.

Dear Countess: This might sound crazy but every word of it is true. A voodoo priest I know thinks I had an affair with his wife and got his revenge by stealing my soul.

Please help me, Countess, before it's too late. I feel like the living dead and if something happens to me before I get my soul back, there's no telling what will happen to me in the afterlife. — Terrified in Baltimore

Dear Terrified: This so-called "voodoo priest" you speak of doesn't have the knowledge or power to steal souls and most certainly doesn't have yours. In the future you'd be wise to steer clear of him, however. He's on a road to ruin with this everyone — even innocent people like you — down with him!

Dear Countess: Nineteen months ago I gave birth to a beautiful baby boy and I've hardly traveled since. You get sick to my stomach just thinking about traveling in a car. The doctors say there's no physical reason for this and suggest that my problem is emotional. Please help me, Countess. I'd love to get out needs to see the world before he grows up. — Worried Mom in Greensburg

Dear Worried: Your problem is indeed psychological but it's nothing to fear or be ashamed of. I have cast a spell to ease your fears. Have a great time on your trip this weekend — my crystal ball assures me that both you and your lovely son will!

THEIR LOVE IS STILL BURNING BRIGHT: Fulvio Cerutti, 20, cuddles with his loving wife Pia Curioni, a year after their marriage.

It's been a year since 20-year-old Fulvio Cerutti married 86-year-old millionairess Pia Curioni — but their love is burning brighter than ever.

In fact, she's even turned over responsibility for her huge fortune to him.

A year ago, newspapers around the world told the couple's amazing story. How their marriage was the sensation of the Italian town of Omegna . . . some people suspected warehouse worker Fulvio was only after Pia's fortune . . . and how they appeared to be the happiest couple in town.

Today the excitement over their marriage has died down and few people are still suspicious of Fulvio — but they're still one of Omegna's most romantic couples.

"Everyone said our marriage wouldn't work — that Fulvio was only after my money.

"But they were wrong," said Pia. "In the beginning we had separate property agreements, but now I trust him absolutely and completely.

"I have handed everything over to him as my beneficiary."

Despite her wealth, before she married Fulvio, spinster Pia lived almost like a pauper. She wore frumpy dresses. Her villa was dingy. She even got water from a stream rather than Oldster falls into barrel & dies!

An old woman tumbled headfirst into a barrel in her trailer home and died of asphyxiation — because she was too feeble to climb out.

"She twisted her neck against books when she fell in and cut off her windpipe. She struggled to get out but couldn't," said Police Captain Larry Butler.

Sarah Sigmand, 67, had been dead for almost a day when worried neighbors called cops to her trailer park home in Kingman, Ariz. "She was a pack rat who kept all sorts of things in her trailer," said Butler.

"Mrs. Sigmand apparently climbed up on a large pile of clothes to get something out of the 4-foot-tall barrel," Capt. Butler said.

"She toppled over into the barrel headfirst and was stuck there. There was so much stuff piled around the barrel that if she tried to tip it over, she couldn't have."

Police estimated the elderly woman died of asphyxiation the barrel because of the way her neck was twisted.

"Her windpipe was cut off," said Capt. Butler.

Man swallows dentist's drill

Nervous patient Neal Ralston opened his mouth wide for the dentist, gulped once in terror — and swallowed the dentist's drill.

Ralston, 22, was taken to a hospital in Oslo, Norway, where doctors decided to let nature take its course as far as the 1½-inch drill was concerned.

STILL GOING STRONG! Frisky Villy Poulsen, 28, gives his 72-year-old wife Anne Marie a big anniversary smooch.

She's 72 — & he's 28!

People said it wouldn't last, but Villy Poulsen, 28, and his 72-year-old wife Anne Marie are still going strong on the ninth anniversary of their marriage.

"Our love for each other grows every day!" declared Villy, a Danish auto mechanic who married the twice-widowed Anne Marie in April 1982.

Says Anne Marie, "What does it matter that I'm 44 years older than him when we love each other so very much?"

The happy couple's incredible story began when Villy had a flat tire outside Anne Marie's house in Oster Lindet, Denmark.

"When I saw him standing there, it was love at first sight," says Anne Marie. "My knees turned to water. I thought, 'This is the man for me!'

"I screwed up my courage and asked him in for a cup of coffee. We just sat there and chatted for hours."

Villy recalled, "I saw right away that she was the woman for me. Her lively smile, her sense of humor and the happy gleam in her eyes were irresistible!"

The very next day Villy was back at Anne Marie's doorstep, me after work," said Anne Marie. "I looked forward to his visits. I never thought about how much younger he was. He was the man I was losing my heart to."

Finally, Villy popped the question. They were married in church a year after they first met.

"The wedding was beautiful," Villy said. "But my wife was so tired from the day's activities she fell asleep as soon as we got to our room. And she snored so much I thought she'd blow me out the window!"

And Anne Marie recalled, "Some people were shocked at first, but our families stuck by us.

"Even though I am old enough to be Villy's grandmother, he gives me a taste of youth again. He makes me feel like a 40-year-old!"

Villy added, "I get angry when some people say I married Anne Marie for her money. She has some capital, but I'm not exactly very broke, either. We never talk about money. Every week I give my paycheck to her.

"I never think of her as being old. She's my wife.

"She's everything I always wanted a woman to be. She's a perfect lover.

"People said it wouldn't last — but if I hadn't had that flat tire outside her house, I never would have found true happiness!"

'She is everything I want a wife to be!'

JET DROPS PEE-PEE ICICLE ON SHOCKED COUPLE!

5-foot chunk rips open roof of N.Y. apartment

A couple were quietly watching television when a chunk of frozen urine from a high-flying jet ripped a foot-square hole in the roof of their apartment.

"I jumped halfway across the floor," said Joanne Cuedek, who thought a bomb had landed on her Buffalo, N.Y., apartment.

"We were watching a cops show on television, and I was wondering who was trying to blow us up," she said.

Police believe a 5-foot piece of frozen urine fell from the waste compartment of a commercial jet passing overhead.

"There doesn't seem to be another explanation," said Police Lt. Tom Masterson.

"We found nothing else at the scene that could punch that size of a hole in the roof," he said.

Police are still checking with area airports to find out if any commercial jets were flying high overhead when the roof was damaged about 10 p.m.

"If a chunk of ice fell from a plane flying at 20,000 to 25,000 feet, it would be traveling at a terrific speed when it hit the roof," said one officer. "Kind of like a bullet." The Cuedeks said cracks extended out several feet in different directions from the hole. The battered roof has already been repaired.

"It just fell from the sky," said Gary Cuedek. "You don't see any ice around here. Everything is melted."

Chinese use hefty hogs as baby-sitters!

Chuckle at this photo if you must, but the parents of these three young girls don't have to worry about kidnappers — not while they're napping on the family's 488-pound "guard pig"!

By DICK DONOVAN

Because of China's skyrocketing rate of abductions, poor parents — well aware that creeps can get a good price in selling their daughters into prosperous households — are relying on the hefty porkers to help protect their children.

"Pigs are highly intelligent creatures, more so than are dogs, and they are quite protective of their owners, especially the children," declared Cung Lee Sing, a People's Party neighborhood leader in Shanghai.

"A charging sow of this size would be very difficult to stop and they can bite off a hand without much difficulty. Not even a kidnapper wants to do combat with a guard pig."

While the guard pigs are highly successful in protecting the homes and children of their owners, not many Chinese families ever have enough money to buy one.

But they do have one big advantage in addition to their unflinching loyalty — they cost a lot less to feed than dogs.

LOYAL pigs are gentle with the owner's kids but fierce with intruders.

How to tell if someone is secretly attracted to you!

By observing subtle, unspoken "love signals" you can tell when someone is secretly interested in you, an expert reveals.

Dr. David Givens, who spent four years researching in bars, discos and other meeting places for his book Love Signals, discloses some of the unconscious ways people express interest.

● Tilting the head — "When you make eye contact with an unfamiliar person and they tilt their head to the side, it means they're probably secretly interested in you," explained Dr. Givens, an anthropologist.

● Mirroring — If a person sitting near you unwittingly imitates you — leaning back when you lean back, for instance — you can safely assume there's an interest in you.

● Cross gaze — "A person might gaze off to their left, then sweep their eyes across your face and gaze off to their right, repeating the movement without settling their gaze on you."

● Exaggerated gestures — Rather than a simple gesture, a person who'd like to catch your eye might make a very elaborate gesture instead.

"For example, instead of a quick glance at her watch, a woman may overextend her arm, then dramatically bring the watch back to her face and tilt her head over to read the dial," said Dr. Givens.

● Hands between the knees — "This is a typical posture men take when they're speaking with women they like. The man will lean forward in his chair, rest his forearms on his knees and clasp his hands between his knees, looking like a blushing third grader stretching toward his pretty teacher."

● Lovesick look — "In this signal, the other person's eyebrows just barely rise, as if the lifting takes every last ounce of their energy.

"Their face goes slack and their lower jaw drops, but their lips remain sealed so that the bottom half of the face looks longer."

CANNIBAL WOMEN KILL SEX FIEND WITH POISON ARROWS!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Outraged mothers living in a cannibal jungle village in Borneo tied a naked young virgin to a tree — to lure a kill-crazy teenage sex fiend to his long-overdue death!

When found the next morning, the unidentified boy's corpse bore more than 100 spear and knife wounds and the six poison-tipped arrows that finally snuffed out his worthless life.

"The boy didn't die a quick or easy death," Christian missionary Karl Froelich said. "The mothers showed no mercy when they got their hands on the fiend who had raped and murdered their daughters.

"In his seven-month reign of terror, he raped and murdered 23 innocent young girls, many of them not even in their teens.

"And to boast of his sordid act, he cut out their hearts and left them in front of the huts where the girls' parents lived. There's no doubt that he was completely insane," said Froelich.

Although the missionary and district authorities are pretty certain they know who the vengeful mothers are, it's extremely unlikely that any official action will be taken against them.

"No one was doing anything to protect our daughters from that devil killer," declared one mother whose 13-year-old daughter was raped and butchered by the sadistic young killer.

"We only did what had to be done to save our daughters. Your Bible speaks of an eye for an eye.

"That has always been the law of the jungle," the tribeswoman declared with a fierce scowl.

OUTRAGED jungle women of a Borneo tribe, right, took a grisly revenge on the crazed rapist who mutilated their daughters. His corpse the next day, still pierced with a few arrows and spears, was like a human pin cushion.

Funny ways men and women are different

No doubt about it, guys and gals are different — and here, thanks to Men's Health magazine, are examples of how:

● Women put their pants on right leg first; men put them on left leg first.

● Men lie about their heights adding ½ inch; women lie about their weight, subtracting 2 pounds.

● Men gab with other men about work and news events; women talk to women about food and health.

Coffin alarms!

The latest item in personal protection is a coffin burglar alarm aimed at stopping grave robbers cold!

Promoters say the Rest In Peace Security System is battery powered and guaranteed for eternity.

"The sickest crime of all, grave-robbing, is on the increase all over Europe," said the South Glamorgan, Wales, company spokesman Thomas Rhayader.

"When the time comes and you or a loved one is lying out there in the cemetery all alone, a coffin burglar alarm is the only protection against grave robbers."

SEX-CHANGE PILOT BANNED FROM THE COCKPIT

By JACK ALEXANDER
Staff writer

Heroic pilot Ian Livingstone was a battle-hardened air force ace with 27 years of flying, but his career went into a tailspin — after he became a she.

"Now I'm a woman no one wants to know," said the veteran pilot, who has been bombed out of jobs since a $5,600 sex-swap operation changed him into Kristina, a shapely 39-27-36 blonde.

"I'm hugely qualified, but the powers that be seem to look on me as a pervert, and they've effectively barred me from the air," said Kristina, 44, of London, England.

Kristina was a woman trapped in a man's body during her long flying career with the Royal Air Force and as a pilot flying dangerous bombing missions with the Rhodesian Air Force.

"I knew from childhood some cruel trick of nature had been played on me," said the ex-fighter ace, who is not only a woman, but a transsexual as well.

HIGH-FLYING air force ace Ian Liv-

Kristina was married when she was a he and has an 11-year-old daughter.

"We had a normal sex life because my body still had male urges," she said.

She fought hard to make the marriage work, but it ended in divorce. Kristina is still friends with her ex-wife, Mary.

Her stint with the Rhodesian Air Force was a desperate bid to prove her masculinity.

"I dropped napalm, fired rockets, blew up a bridge and killed people," said Kristina, who as Ian Livingstone, was twice awarded for bravery.

The sex-change operation occurred while Ian was a commercial jet pilot for Britannia Airways.

"On my 40th birthday I stepped outside my door in a blonde wig, red dress and high heels," Kristina said. "It all felt so natural, I've lived as a woman ever since."

The blonde bombshell eventually lost her job with Britannia after seven years, and has been turned down for more than 30 jobs.

"I seem to be on a blacklist," Kristina said. "I'm asking the Equal Opportunities Commission to back me on a test case."

But Kristina says her personal life is just fine. She has a steady boyfriend and enjoys being attractive to men.

"It is a lot of fun wearing skirts and getting whistled at by the guys."

BEAUTIFUL Kristina has been turned down for more than 30 jobs AFTER becoming a gal. "But my personal life is just fine," she says.

DOUBLE YOUR WEIGHT LOSS
THE EASY WAY — WITH A FRIEND'S HELP!

Help! That's the first thing you should think of when you launch yourself on a diet that tests your willpower.

When the going gets tough, turn to your spouse, a close friend or co-worker for active support — and you'll be amazed at how much easier it is to stick to your diet and lose weight.

Result: a leaner, happier and healthier you to enjoy.

In a recent study, diet expert Dr. Kelly Brownell, co-author of The Partnership Diet Program, found that dieters who had help from partners lost an incredible twice as much weight as those who didn't.

The first step is to find a suitable partner — someone you can trust and respect. Once you've found a partner, you're ready to go:

DIETER'S ROLE

- Make specific helpful suggestions to your partner, such as, "It's better when you avoid snacking in front of me."
- Reinforce your partner's good behavior by showing appreciation for anything he or she does to help you stick to your program.
- Eat with your partner whenever possible.
- Learn to leave food on your plate. Throw away scrap leftovers.
- Eat at the same time every day, in the same place, and make sure you do nothing but eat during meals. No reading or watching TV.
- Keep a calorie diary of everything you eat. If you're female, try not to go over 1,200 calories a day. Men should limit their intake to 1,500 calories.

PARTNER'S ROLE

- Be prepared to give of your time and eat as many meals as possible with the dieter.
- Give compliments when they are deserved, such as, "That's great. You're really sticking with it!"
- Whenever possible, do the food shopping yourself and serve the meals yourself so portions will not be too big and the dieter's contact with food will be minimal.
- Provide a model of good eating habits. This reminds the dieter to do the same and shows you're committed.
- Help the dieter resist temptation by providing lively conversation during meals.

8 things you should never put on a job application

When you fill out a job application, what you leave out is often more important than what you include.

Here are comments no one should ever place on an application, according to top job recruiter Robert Half.

● "I'm not particular about the kind of work I do. I just want something that pays me enough to get by."

An employer is likely to think that the applicant will be disinterested in his job.

● "Money isn't important to me."

If an applicant doesn't care about money, he probably won't care about being fired, either.

● "My last employer was very disorganized." Criticizing your former boss will only lead a prospective employer to think you'll someday publicly complain about him, too.

● "I prefer informality" or "I prefer setting my own pace."

These comments show you to be a nonconformist or someone likely to create problems.

● "I am impatient with quibbling over minor details.

"I am stubborn on matters of principle."

Many would-be employers will see this person as a demanding individual who will refuse to take criticism.

● "I dislike ultraconservative thinking, inefficient systems and Republicans."

Such philosophies have no place in the workplace — and might offend the interviewer.

● ". . . As the nature of the job declines in the hierarchy of preference, so obviously would come into play the decisiveness of compensating subordinate factors . . ." Don't try to impress your prospective boss with big words. He'll resent it.

● "You'll be making a terrible mistake if you don't set up an interview for me as soon as possible." Being immodest or arrogant can scare off the person reading your application.

It's official!

Gal drivers are worse than men

An amazing new study proves it — lady drivers are worse than men!

"Women consistently under-perform in tests behind the wheel," declared Lisa Dorn, a psychologist at Aston University in Birmingham, England.

"The problem is a lack of spatial ability, and also that women are easily distracted. This means that they are more likely to get lost while driving and have accidents than men."

The expert reached her conclusions after putting 200 men and women through a series of tests, news reports said.

CRUEL KIDS SELL CANCER MOM'S PAIN PILLS TO DOPE FIENDS!

Two heartless kids stole their mom's cancer medication and sold it to drug addicts — so they could live it up on the proceeds.

Danielle and Robert Moore took the morphine intended to ease the agony of dying Mary Moore's last days, leaving her only a watered-down supply.

The 50-year-old housewife from Southampton, England, was in excruciating pain in the final three weeks of her life.

"You will live with this on your consciences for the rest of your lives," said angry Judge Robin Miller, who sentenced the pair to 12 months on probation for theft and supplying drugs.

According to court testimony, Mary Moore was discharged from the hospital with incurable cancer and sent home to die. She was given a large supply of painkilling morphine to make her last hours bearable — but her own children put her through hell.

Danielle, 27, and Robert, 26, stole their mother's medication and hawked it on the streets for cash. Their mother, tortured by body-wracking pain, died within a few weeks. Meanwhile, police learned that the brother and sister were selling drugs and arrested them. During the investigation, the awful truth about their crime was revealed.

After their court appearance, the brother and sister hid out at their home, local papers said. They refused to comment on their actions when reporters called.

Gimme a 'ribbit' on rye — with extra mayo!

FOR THE HEARTY APPETITE: Most folks eat just the legs of a frog, but Georgia glutton Rob Grant likes 'em whole. Add mustard and mayo for a little zip.

YUMMY! Rob's mouth waters with anticipation as he eyes his snack creation.

OPEN WIDE! These jumbo bullfrog sandwiches definitely aren't for dainty eaters.

Nutty trucker snacks on live frog sandwiches!

By LAUREL BOWIE

Beefy chowhound Rob Grant can put away a passel of meat and potatoes when he wants to. But when roly-poly Rob is looking for a special treat, he skips the steak and spuds — and wolfs down a live frog sandwich!

"People are quick to say, 'Oh, yuck!' when they see me eating one of these things," said the steel-stomached trucker, waving a frog-on-rye. "But they shouldn't knock it if they haven't tried it.

"They just don't know how good a live frog can taste with a little mayo, a little mustard, maybe a little lettuce tossed in."

Rugged Rob, 35, says he's been bolting down bullfrogs since he was a boy — and loving every scrumptious bite.

"I must have been about 10 when I stuck my first frog," the Georgia good ol' boy told a reporter in Macon. "While the other kids used theirs for bait, I ate mine — and I thought it was delicious.

"After that I was always out sticking frogs and eating 'em raw.

"I didn't care what kind of frog it was. Big ones, little ones, I'd eat 'em all.

"People told me it was disgusting, especially when they watched me eat a live one," he said.

"But the live ones always tasted a lot better to me than the dead ones for some reason."

Frog-gobbling Rob scoffed his first croaker sandwich when he was a sophomore in high school — and picked up a nifty 50 bucks in the process.

"We were having our Fourth of July picnic or something out in the sticks when I got me a frog and bet the kids I'd eat it in a sandwich," he recalled.

"There was a few of my buddies around who'd seen me eat a frog before, so I knew they'd keep their mouths shut and let me win some money.

"I took all the bologna out of a bologna sandwich and put that frog in there and chomped it right down.

"Some of the girls didn't eat nothing for the rest of the day, but I thought it was the best sandwich I ever had."

And the bearded bachelor's been feasting on frog sandwiches ever since.

"Frog hoagies, frog burgers or just a plain old frog-on-white, they're all absolutely, positively wonderful," gushed ravenous Rob.

"People keep telling me I could get sick from eating raw frogs, but I don't really care. For something this delicious, it's worth the risk."

Man shot 10 days — and didn't know it!

An 80-year-old Canadian man went to a doctor after suffering blurred vision for 10 days and found out he had accidentally shot himself in the head.

"It was a miracle he survived," said Police Sgt. Roy Bowman in New Hamburg, Ontario.

The oldster has no memory of the shooting. A doc-

St. Joseph of Cupertino, a 17th-century priest, was famed as "the Flying Friar" because of his astounding ability to float around in the air like a human balloon.

Miraculous 'Flying Friar'

Priest floated in air as thousands watched

His amazing feats were witnessed by scores of people, including Pope Urban VIII. He was born Giuseppe Desa in Italy on June 17, 1603, under circumstances remarkably similar to those surrounding the birth of Christ.

Giuseppe's father, a poor carpenter, was forced to leave town with his pregnant wife when he was harassed by creditors, and Giuseppe was born in a stable. As a boy he spent all his time praying, and at age 8 he even built a small altar in a corner of his home.

At the age of 22, Guiseppe was accepted into the Franciscan order and on March 28, 1628, he was ordained as a priest and sent to a small parish where his miraculous flights began to occur. The first time it happened, he was praying in church when he suddenly sailed into the air with a shriek of ecstasy and landed on the altar.

And then, giving another shout of joy, he flew back to the spot where he had been praying.

Word of his amazing levitation powers reached Rome, and Pope Urban VIII summoned the young priest to the Vatican. Giuseppe became so joyous in the Pope's presence that he rose into the air in a trance. The Pope was stunned. He promised that he would personally vouch for Giuseppe's rare talent.

Giuseppe's fame quickly spread beyond Italy, and pilgrims from other countries flocked to his church to see him fly. He once floated in the air for 20 yards, hovering among burning candles without being burned.

On his deathbed in September 1663, Giuseppe, then 60 years old, fell into a trance and floated gently to the steps of a chapel. He died the next day.

— FRANCIS LUPARELLO

SOARING SAINT: Father Desa's amazing feat was captured in this painting.

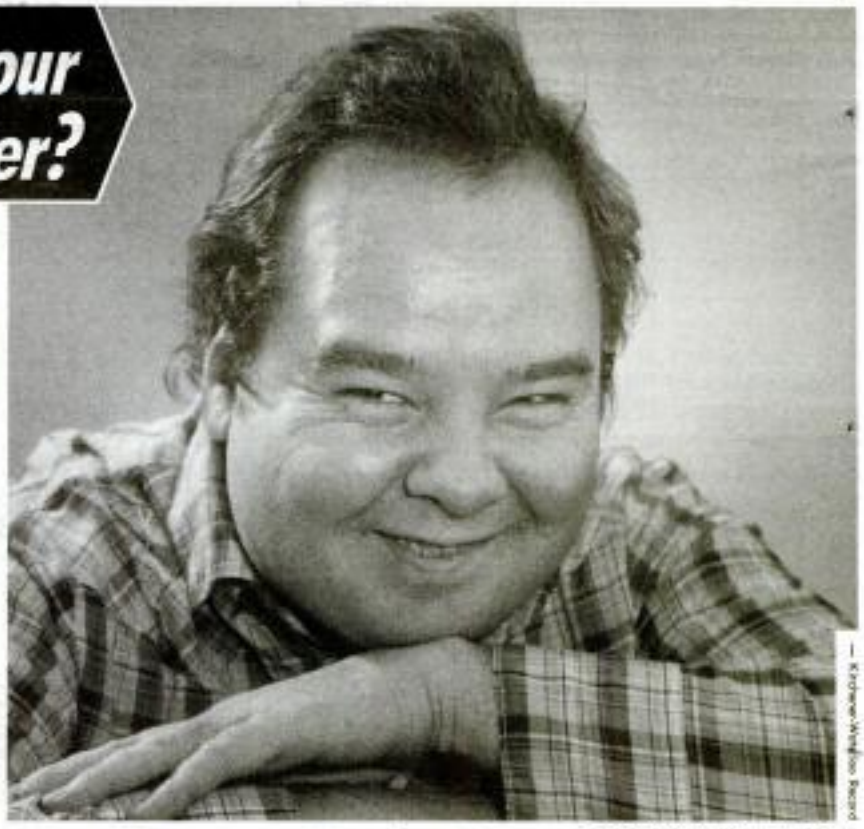
Would you trust your child to this molester?

Convicted sex creep opens day care center for kids!



— Kitchener-Waterloo Record

DISGUSTING Garry Rhindress assaulted a 6-year-old boy and now he wants to "care" for other children.

BY JACK ALEXANDER

A man who sexually assaulted a 6-year-old boy has opened a child-care center — and there's nothing anybody can do about it.

Garry Rhindress was convicted two years ago of fondling the little boy during a back yard sleep-out in a tent.

He was placed on two years probation and told not to be alone with anyone under the age of 16. But Rhindress, 26, has angered probation officers and others with his new business venture.

"Given the nature of his previous offense, this very much disturbs me," said Susan Cox, his former probation officer in Kitchener, Ontario.

A loophole in Canadian law allows anyone to open a child-care center without a license, providing they care for fewer than six children.

"Our people let it be known loud and clear that we don't agree with the licensing laws, but the sad fact is there is no law to prevent what Rhindress is doing," said Ross Virgo of the probation department.

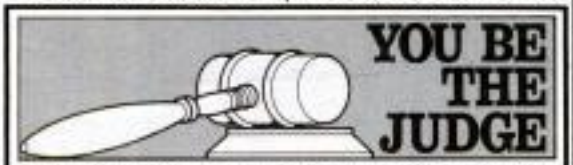
Rhindress has maintained he is innocent of the sexual assault and is still trying to appeal his conviction.

After being out of work for six months after his conviction, Rhindress spent about $500 advertising in flyers and newspapers for customers for his day care center. He also bought toys and equipment for the center and stocked up on refreshments and children's products."

A month after he opened, Rhindress had no customers.

"Since there is a loophole in the law, we're hoping that word of mouth will continue to keep customers away from his door," said Elizabeth Marsh of the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

"Nobody is comfortable with a man like that running a child-care center, but the law is the law," she said.



Outraged readers who want to sound off to Canadian lawmakers for allowing convicted child molesters like Garry Rhindress to operate child care centers and come in contact with children should write to Pervert Law, c/o Weekly World News, 600 So. Some weird facts about your body

You are tallest in the morning because your height may increase by as much as a third of an inch while you sleep. The sponge-like discs between your vertebrae are filled with liquid. During your waking hours this liquid is squeezed out from between the stacked discs. While you sleep, the liquid is absorbed.

This is one of several weird facts most folks may not know about their bodies, says Longevity magazine in lifting a page from Scot Morris' book, The Emperor Who Ate the Bible and More Strange

It's impossible to catch a cold or the flu outdoors in winter at the North Pole because it is so cold that no disease-causing microorganism can survive.

The skin is the largest organism and the butt is the largest muscle in the body.

Circus juggler knocked silly by eager fan

A circus juggler was flattened when he asked members of the audience to toss him his clubs — and one of them beaned him in the head!

Karcsi Donnert hoped to catch the clubs but one woman got so excited that she hauled off and threw it as hard as she could.

The 20-year-old performer tried to duck but couldn't get out of the way fast enough. The nine-pound club hit him square in the head, dropping him to the floor like a sack of potatoes.

"The woman was so worried that her club wouldn't reach him that she threw it overarm like a baseball," said Albert Tyler-Moore, a spectator who witnessed the bizarre mishap.

"The juggler went down and it was hilarious at first. Everybody thought it was part of his act. But eventually he staggered to his feet with blood pouring down his face.

"He tried to continue his act but toppled over again. He was out like a light. He never knew what hit him."

Donnert was rushed to a hospital in London, where the Hungarian circus that employs him was performing, for observation and stitches.

A spokesman for the circus said: "Karcsi is fine now but he's thinking of changing his act. I don't think he'll use the audience again."

Soon you'll be able to take a pill every morning that will make you smart all day long, experts say.

Already, medications are available in Europe and Asia that replace depleted brain chemicals, increase blood flow to the brain and preserve brain cells. One drug — Hydergine — can be obtained in the U.S. by prescription.

MY BOOB JOB IS KILLING ME!

. . . and millions of other women are at risk, too

Mother-of-eight Marie Walsh says she's dying of a horrible disease — and she blames it on her breast implants!

The Laguna Hills, Calif., woman says her boob job is killing her and she's warning the two million American women who have implants that the same may happen to them.

"Doctors aren't informing people of the risks," says Marie, 45. "The silicone in the implants can leak into the body, causing diseases of the immune system. People get rheumatoid arthritis, scleroderma and lupus.

"In my case it's affected my lower intestines and my liver is enlarged. I have chronic lymph and kidney disease. I'm all puffed up and I have to have cortisone so I can function. My doctor says the condition is progressive and that I now have silica all through my body. He says I'll either get liver disease or cancer."

Marie's ordeal began in 1982, eleven years after doctors gave her an implant to correct a deformed breast. She started suffering from night sweats, hair loss, mysterious rashes and muscle aches. She visited doctor after doctor, clinic after clinic, but no one could diagnose her illness.

Finally Marie woke up one morning with her nightgown plastered to her body and silicone gel from her left breast oozing everywhere. Her breast implant had ruptured, spilling its contents and spreading throughout her body. Doctors told her it was a miracle she survived the mishap — and replaced her implant.

But over the next nine years, her problems continued and doctors finally realized it was silicone leaking from her implant that was causing her failing health. Last year she had her implant removed again but by that time her immune system had been permanently crippled, she says.

Doctors have told her she will eventually die from the effects of the silicone.

Marie sued the manufacturer of her defective implant and wound up with an $80,000 settlement. But she was so upset by her ordeal that she founded a group to inform other women of the dangers of implants and offer support to implant recipients who are already ill. "I want to ban breast implants," Marie said. "And I want to tell all women that being flat is fine. It's sure better than risking your health."

"I WANT to ban breast implants," says Marie Walsh. "Being flat is better than risking your health."

HUBBY Raymond, left.

Yvonne Adams did so poorly on her job interview for state trooper that she wound up in jail!

When asked if she had ever broken the law, the 20-year-old made a lasting impression by speaking truthfully, cops say.

"She said she and her husband had taken a 1990 Honda Accord from a car lot," said Sgt. Kathleen Plesich of the Ohio Highway Patrol in Columbus. "It turned out it was the same car she'd used to come to the interview.

"When her husband arrived to pick her up driving the stolen car, they were both arrested and the Honda was impounded."

Yvonne and her husband Raymond, 20, are both charged with grand theft of a motor vehicle and receiving stolen property. They have been released on bond pending trial.

"It seemed unusual to us, naturally," Sgt. Plesich said. "It's not every day we invite someone to an interview who admits to high crimes. "They actually drove the evidence in. Here it was, right under our noses. She practically gave the car to us with a red ribbon on it."

Both Yvonne and her husband Raymond face years in prison for their crime, Sgt. Plesich said. That isn't exactly the side of the criminal justice system that Yvonne was interested in. — SUSAN JIMISON

Popping good time

Josephine and Melvin White bought a tin can of popcorn on their wedding night — and popped it on their fiftieth wedding anniversary!

The couple got the container of Jolly Time in 1941 and kept it over the years, taking it with them whenever they moved. They broke down and popped it with their friends and kids for their golden wedding celebration.

"I guess it became sort of a symbol of commitment and continuity," said Josephine White, who lives in Mount Calm, Tex.

"And it popped — really popped. The most interesting part of the day was seeing how excited everybody got over that can of popcorn. Everybody agreed that it was delicious."

Revenge of the nude bank exec!

Woman wins $225G from sneaky ex-hubby after he publishes her naked pic!

SURPRISE! THIS nude photo of banker Susan Hudson in her backyard pool appeared in a national skin magazine without her knowledge.

By JOE BERGER

Shapely banker Susan Hudson got the shock of her life when she opened the pages of a raunchy girlie magazine — and found her nude photo staring back at her!

But the irate lady got sweet revenge when she sued her ex-hubby for sending in the steamy snapshot — and outraged jurors awarded her a whopping $225,000.

Attorney Jeff Morrison said jilted Jennings Gordon, 50, shipped Susan's photo to Gallery magazine — then sent copies of the magazine to her mother and her boss — purely for spite.

"He is just a plain mean, nasty, rotten person," said the Marietta, Ga., lawyer. The bizarre story began in 1985, when sexy Susan's picture appeared in Gallery's "Girl Next Door Amateur Erotic Photo Contest."

The photo showed the bank loan officer lounging naked on a raft in her backyard swimming pool.

The red-faced lady was so rattled when a copy of the magazine landed on her boss' desk that she eventually quit her job, her attorney said.

"Everywhere she turned, she just didn't know who had seen that picture and who hadn't," he said.

Shook-up Susan, now 40 and remarried, sued her ex for $5 million, charging he invaded her privacy when he submitted the naughty pic without her permission.

The embarrassed banker said she'd allowed her husband to take more than 100 nude snapshots of her during their marriage, but she insisted they were intended for his eyes only.

"These photos were very, very private," she testified. "I did it in the trust of a marriage."

Gordon admitted sending in the picture and forging Susan's signature on the release form allowing Gallery to publish it.

"This is the woman I love," the businessman told jurors.

How you can stay married — and happy!

If you would like to be happily married, here are a few tips that might help, according to the Rev. Norbert Burns of the University of Dayton.

- Be sincere with each other before getting married.
- Decide on the kind of life you want to lead, and make sure you follow it.
- Consider your first year of marriage the most important year of your life.
- Expect conflict. It is normal and healthy.
- Work hard to develop a way to resolve conflicts.
- Spend two nights a month dating each other, going out on the town or just being together away from the home and/or kids.
- Humor can help a marriage, but be sure your partner can take a joke and has a sense of humor.
- Never argue at the table or in bed.
- Be creative together. Try different things.
- Be 97 percent upbeat and 3 percent the other way.

SAFEST TIME IN YOUR LIFE:

GIANT HOROSCOPE

FOR WEEK OF
Mon., May 27 — Sun., June 2

By Countess Sophia Sabak

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Life shouldn't be dull for somebody as energetic as you.

Jump into the week feetfirst. That first step may be a long one, but after that you should be off and running with all signs pointing to some financial success.

A lucky break may come your way, and you're just the one to recognize it. Do your darndest to make the best of this opportunity.

A romantic attraction from the past could pay you a visit. Enjoy it!

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Make the most of yourself this week. You're more intuitive than you realize. And you should be able to understand what's going on, especially if you pay attention to your dreams.

Keep plugging away. It'll pay off, and you may be offered an opportunity that will let you come out ahead financially.

Don't battle it out with your sweetie over anything this week. Back off and compromise.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

You've been making your own luck for a while and now you should start feeling the benefits. The right doors should start opening, but don't be shy about giving them a push.

Opposition to what you're doing should disappear when the time is right.

Clouds that may have hovered over romantic times should soon vanish.

Loved ones should fuss over you. You deserve it!

CANCER
June 21-July 22

All signs seem to point to success in making your dreams come true. Get busy and help those dreams along!

This week may find you taking a bumpy ride emotionally. Maybe it's time to step back and take a long hard look at a relationship. Is it worth the hassle?

Listen up. Greater financial security should be just around the corner. But be content to keep your nose to the grindstone for now.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

Something wild or wonderful could happen this week. Enjoy whatever comes your way and make good use of the experience.

Your winning ways can get you what you want, but have you been forgetting to use them at home? Try making your loved ones feel special and your home life should soon change for the better.

There may be some delays in a project you've set your heart on. The hang-up should be only temporary.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Don't let anybody rain on your parade. A loved one may unconsciously be dragging you down. Concentrate on what's best for you and you won't regret it in the end.

A lot depends on how you handle yourself both in and out of the home.

Hang on. The troubles that could be bothering you should soon fade away.

There are plenty of good money-making ideas out there that you should take advantage of now.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

You should like this week. Some praise for what you've been doing should be headed your way.

Future prospects look good, and you should be pleased at how well events are beginning to go for you.

If you've been keeping your nose to the grindstone, you may get a welcome break soon.

Married or single, your thoughts may be turning to romance.

Follow your heart and above all, don't be shy!

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Take life one day at a time for a while.

There's no need to be impatient about the future. Important plans should reveal themselves soon and you should be pleased with what's in store for you and yours.

Be firm with loved ones. You really do know what's best right now.

Your friends could have some good financial advice for you. It could come in handy when you feel you just can't resist "a sure thing."

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

This looks like a good week for taking care of lots of little matters. Work at a steady pace and you should get a lot done that you may have been putting off.

The key to getting your life together right now may be tossing out a lot you've accumulated.

A bright moneymaking idea could be just waiting for you to check it out.

Keep sharing ideas and dreams with your loved one.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Hesitate and you could lose out this week. Be flexible so that you can jump on any opportunity that comes by.

A moneymaking project could be proposed by someone you don't know very well. This could be a better deal than it sounds at first.

You must offer trust if you expect to be trusted, and this works in your love life, too. Let your romantic feelings out and you may just find that they'll be returned twice over.

If your birthday is this week . . .

Whatever you go for this year should end in success.

A high energy level should give you what it takes to tackle anything that comes your way.

Set some financial goals. Future security is worth the sacrifices you might have to make right now.

Your natural charm should make loved ones happy, and turn your enemies into exciting new friends. Your confidence should draw people to you.

Luck and love should be with you all

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Through no fault of yours, this week could be crazy. Try to accept this and work around it.

Listen to the financial advice of people you know and respect. You ought to be able to rake in a few extra dollars now if you've paid attention to all the hints that have been dropped.

Don't allow family members to try your patience. Overlook their shortcomings, and everyone will end up

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

What you want this week probably won't come without a lot of hard work, so swing into action.

This is no time to wait for good things to come to you. Get out there and show your stuff, and make things happen.

One of your greatest pleasures this week could be your home life. You should find yourself wanting to give affection — and receiving it.

Be content with what you have . . .

Light-fingered judge's lame excuses for shoplifting:

I stole because I had a rash and my toilet leaked!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A troubled judge gave 19 reasons why she was under stress when she shoplifted a couple of $29.99 watches from a department store — but she was found guilty anyway.

Florence S. Powers of Ewing, N.J., an administrative law judge, was found guilty and fined $300 by Superior Court Judge Samuel Lenox Jr., but she was allowed to keep her $70,150-a-year job.

Clinical psychologist Jan Carl Grossman testified in her behalf, listing 19 reasons for her stress and the forgetfulness it may have caused when she stole the watches.

GUILTY: Judge Powers

Here are the 19 excuses:

- She hurt her back, neck and knees in a 7-car accident. She was out of work for a week and had to shop for a new car.
- She got a traffic ticket as a result of the accident.
- She was behind in her work after sick leave.
- She feared she had breast cancer and had been treated for anal cancer (she doesn't have either).
- She had to arrange her family's Christmas and Hanukkah celebrations and buy 200 gifts for 40 people.
- Her husband, David, has kidney stones.
- He also has asthma, and a breathing machine had to be installed in his bedroom.
- She gets menopausal hot flashes.
- She suffered an "ungodly" vaginal itch.
- A bad rash left ugly splotches on her skin.
- She needed dental surgery.
- Her son, Jonathan, 8, had to start using a breathing machine for asthma.
- She had to organize her parents' 50th wedding anniversary party.
- Her mother and aunt were sick.
- She had to throw a Thanksgiving dinner for 20 relatives.
- She was suing the people who improperly cleaned her wallpaper.
- She had bought furniture which had to be returned.
- She was trying to sell her house without an agent.
- A toilet in her house would not stop flushing.

Her lawyer, Robert P. Martinez, argued that Judge Powers had no memory of how one of the watches made its way into her coat pocket, and another onto her wrist.

Lousy dad better than no dad, claims expert

No matter how bad a dad is, he's better for his kids than no dad at all, a top psychiatrist says.

He says a father-son relationship is crucial in the development of healthy boys and that when dad leaves the family normal development is impossible.

"The father-son relationship is the most important relationship in determining how men will be as parents and as husbands," says Frank Pittman, an Atlanta family therapist and author who thinks women are too quick to divorce their husbands and leave their kids fatherless. "Dads have to be pretty bad to be worse than no father at all.

"Therapists and sometimes wives are quite tempted to give up on guys, especially if they have an affair. What's needed is for therapists to understand masculinity well enough to develop some sense of tolerance for all these ultra-masculine things men do from time to time."

The Secret to Looking and Feeling 10 Years Younger.

Chicago, IL — Don't miss this free offer. A slight hearing loss can make you appear older, and certainly less confident. But it doesn't have to.

Today's tiny, computer-age hearing instruments will help you remain a part of everything that's going on around you. They're so inconspicuous, they're virtually the size of the tip of your finger and disappear into the ear when they're worn. To demonstrate this important fact, Beltone is happy to announce their free offer of a non-operating model of the smallest Beltone hearing aid. It's absolutely free to anyone requesting it.

It's not a real hearing aid, but it will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It weighs less than an eighth of an ounce, and fits completely into the ear canal.

There's no cost and certainly no obligation. For your FREE sample, write today to: Dept. 14988, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

In California, your local authorized Beltone dispenser may call.

History's greatest glutton

Around the turn of the century, millionaire Diamond Jim Brady became famous as America's greatest glutton — because he could easily gobble down as much as 28,000 calories a day!

Even back then, the 300-pound millionaire's massive appetite cost him a whopping $1,000 a day.

People loved to read about Diamond Jim's eating habits so much newspapers used to assign reporters to cover his meals.

And George Rector, a leading restaurateur of the time, said that Diamond Jim "was the best 25 customers I ever had."

Here's what the big guy shoveled away on one day — Aug. 17, 1885:

Diamond Jim Brady was 300-pound eating machine

Breakfast — Brady started off with a bowl of oatmeal, downed two eggs, one slice of corn bread, two muffins, two pancakes, two pork chops, a plate of fried potatoes and a steak. He washed it all down with a gallon of fruit juice.

Midmorning Snack — Brady gobbled 30 raw oysters.

Lunch — A half-dozen oysters led off this meal, followed by two crabs, two lobsters, roast beef, salad, one whole apple pie, one whole cherry pie and four glasses of juice.

Dinner — Brady really got down to business for his main meal. After an appetizer of three dozen raw oysters, he ate six crabs, two bowls of turtle soup, six lobsters, two ducks, two turtle-meat steaks, a steak, carrots, peas, 12 dozen cookies and two pounds of chocolates.

Late-Evening Snack — Two game birds, four bottles of soft drink, four glasses of juice.

James Buchanan Brady was born into an Irish immigrant family in 1856. His father owned a saloon, but Brady didn't go into the family business. He became a salesman of railroad equipment, and soon was a millionaire financier.

Brady was called "Diamond Jim" because he always dripped expensive jewelry when he was out on the town.

When Brady sat down to dine, he always left four inches between his stomach and the table. He knew he had eaten enough when flesh met wood.

Shortly before he died in 1917 at the age of 60, the New York Society of Restaurateurs toasted Diamond Jim as "the best customer they ever had or would have."

FABULOUS FATSO Diamond Jim Brady was honored as "the best customer we ever had" by grateful New York restaurant owners.

What a man's car reveals about his personality

By JOAN BARSTOW

It used to be that you were what you ate. But nowadays you are what you drive — especially if you're a man.

And that goes double when it comes to your love life.

"Cars reveal a lot about their owners," says New York psychologist William Perkinson.

"A person will tend to buy a car that reflects his personality and character traits."

Here's a breakdown of six different types of men and how they treat their cars:

1. The Cuddly Type: He gives his car a pet name, buys the latest in car-care products and keeps his wheels spotless and perfectly tuned.

"This man has a big heart and a good sense of humor," says Perkinson.

"He takes good care of his wife. In bed, he'll massage her back for hours and then promptly fall asleep.

"If his wife doesn't have a car, he'll drive her wherever she wants to go."

2. The Nerd: He has a car full of dolls — from Garfield on the windshield to Bart Simpson in the rear window.

"This is the Woody Allen type," says Perkinson.

"He's slightly absentminded and not always reliable. He's outraged by meanness.

"He happily hops into bed, but he's not very imaginative."

3. The Braggart: He's hot on technology — with a car boasting a turbo engine and overdrive.

"He's fast," says Perkinson, "both on the road and in bed.

"He knows only one speed, and his aim is the super-orgasm."

4. The Mama's Boy: He's happy driving any old jalopy because he's suspicious of technology.

"He's conservative, orderly and anxious," says Perkinson. "He loves comfort and is slightly introverted.

"He drives to visit his mother every Sunday for coffee.

"He'll only make love in the dark — and then only in the missionary position."

5. The Senior Manager: He drives a huge sedan loaded with ornaments and chrome.

"He loves according to the textbook," says Perkinson.

"He takes 15 minutes for lovemaking and then it's back to work.

"He'll even keep his glasses on during sex."

6. The Pompous Type: He wears an imitation Rolex and always drives with his car phone in his hand.

"He likes hanging out with the successful types," says Perkinson. "Everything is a facade with him. He constantly talks to women, telling them how cultured he is. He'll take a woman to an expensive restaurant and then make some excuse about forgetting his credit card at home.

"In bed, he's a disaster — often to the point of being impotent."

PURR-FECT HARMONY: Consuela the singing cat joins owner Maria Garcia in a duet.

Singing kitty knows 36 songs by heart

By NIKKI CHACON

Maria Garcia and her singing cat Consuela are taking South America by storm. They've played to stunned audiences in Brazil, Bolivia, Colombia and Chile — and plan to cut their first record in June!

"Everything happened so fast that I still have to pinch myself to make sure I'm not dreaming," the 17-year-old woman told newsmen in Americana, Brazil.

"But I can't take all the credit for our success. A lot of people come to our shows to hear Consuela. She's the only singing cat in the world."

The 5-year-old cat doesn't speak English or Spanish but she screeches, howls and meows in near perfect pitch. She knows 36 songs by heart and actually takes the lead in several of the duo's numbers, including their renditions of the pop hit "Wind Beneath My Wings" and Tammy Wynette's country classic, "D-I-V-O-R-C-E."

"Consuela wasn't anything special until I started taking voice lessons myself," said Miss Garcia. "When I sat down at the piano to practice she got in the habit of jumping up on the keyboard and meowing along with me.

"It was funny at first but it wasn't long before I realized that she really could carry a tune. Friends and neighbors started coming over to see her. Then we got on the TV news."

Promoter Sergio Ramos saw the segment and signed the duo to a contract.

And Ramos expects the ranks of fans to grow by leaps and bounds after the duo re-

Incredible creature

By SUSAN JIMISON
Staff writer

Scientists have unearthed the first complete fossil of a mermaid — and discovered that the fabled beauties were vicious predators who devoured sea life and hapless sailors like bloodthirsty sharks.

The fossil was discovered in a limestone rock outcropping on the coast of Yugoslavia, near Sibenik. Its perfectly preserved remains show a mouthful of razor-sharp teeth and powerful flesh-ripping jaws.

"The creature was female and probably swam the seas 12,000 years ago," said Dr. J. Patrick O'Connor, a California archaeologist who has worked on the Sibenik site since April 1987. "It was killed in an undersea landslide and its body was encapsulated and gradually fossilized by the limestone around it.

"These are the first complete remains of a mermaid ever found. They prove that the creatures did, in fact, exist. They also show that mermaids were drastically different from the sexy beauties of myth. They were actually terrifying predators who lived exclusively on living prey."

The five-foot, three-inch fossil has a human-like body above the waist with two strong arms and a large, well-developed head, Dr. O'Connor said. The hands are webbed with sharp claws and the eyes are lidless like a fish's eyes.

The jaw was designed to attack and tear the flesh of prey. The super-sharp fangs are preserved, still attached to the jawbone.

"We have heard plenty in ancient myths about how mermaids lured sailors to their death with their beauty and their hypnotic singing," Dr. O'Connor said. "But my guess is that no one who ever saw these creatures close up survived to describe what they looked like.

"From a distance they may have looked desirable, but I pity the poor sailor who met up with one of these. They were intelligent, evil and deadly."

Dr. O'Connor and his colleagues revealed their find in the Yugoslavian scientific journal Science Exchange. They say their studies indicate that the creature lived about 10,000 B.C. along the coast of Yugoslavia.

Dr. O'Connor says the sea creatures may have numbered in the millions at one time, but with climatic changes they slowly disappeared.

"We believe they are probably extinct now," Dr. O'Connor said. "But who knows? There may still be a few survivors somewhere in the world's oceans."

AMAZING discovery proves mermaids did exist. "And there may still be a few survivors somewhere in the world's oceans," says Dr. J. Patrick O'Connor, left.
